Cupcake Care

Delicious old-fashioned baking never lasts more than a day and we agree it is best that way: "Down with Day-Old"! We will never refrigerate or freeze our Prairie Girl cupcake batter or cupcakes but what should you do if you are just not able to serve all of your delicious cupcakes the day you pick them up? It's easy!

Simply pop them in the freezer (no more than a week please) and then, 2 to 3 hours before you wish to serve them, bring the cupcakes to room temperature. Our delicious butter and cream cheese icings are best enjoyed soft and creamy so try to give Prairie Girl cupcakes enough time to thaw.

Oh, and one more caution: don't thaw Prairie Girl cupcakes in a microwave oven. The icing will melt before the cupcake thaws and, well, just don't!
